

Defence and National Security

Practice area

With security threats and modern warfare constantly evolving, companies within the Defence and National Security sector face both opportunities and unprecedented challenges, increasing the need to have knowledge of procurement procedures and to ensure compliance with complex national and international regulations.

SUB AREAS

Specialised advice with a commercial outlook

Global political developments in recent years have intensified the focus on military security and the demand for a more robust and high-tech Danish and European defence. The Danish Parliament (and its European allies) has consequently pledged itself to substantially increase defence spending in the coming years, which will drive significant investments in various industries directly or indirectly connected to defense.

In the coming years, the Danish Ministry of Defence Acquisition and Logistics Organisation ("DALO") will tender large contracts, ranging from service and maintenance to procurement of various goods and IT systems.

To support clients navigating the complexities of the defence sector, Plesner has a dedicated Defence and National Security team of highly specialised lawyers with broad expertise.

In our Defence and National Security team, we combine many years of experience from various legal fields and the most complex cases with a strong focus on current developments in the defence area. This enables us to provide tailored, multidisciplinary advice and assist our clients in making informed, commercial decisions on a wide range of defence-related issues, including in relation to corporate compliance, the conclusion of commercial contracts for the supply of equipment, IT systems, contract works etc. to the Danish national defence as well as related procurement law issues.
