Frederik is a manager in Plesner's Data Protection Law team, and specialises in privacy, data protection and AI.

PRACTICE AREAS

Data Protection Law

Frederik advises clients in the private and public sector on all data protection issues related to the GDPR, Danish Data Protection Act, sector-specific laws regulating processing of personal data and AI Act.

Frederik has extensive experience providing legal advice on the complex interplay between the GDPR and national provisions on the processing of personal data in the financial and pharmaceutical sector. Frederik has advised several banks, insurance companies and pharmaceutical companies operating in Denmark, and has also gained experience from secondment to a client in the pharmaceutical sector. Frederik has also been part of the defence counsel team for clients in criminal cases.

Frederik holds a master's degree (LL.M.) from the University of Copenhagen.

The complexity of the legal landscape within data privacy is continuously increasing. Frederik and his colleagues in the market-leading Data Protection Law team of Plesner are in demand among clients for their focus on quality, unique combination of expertise and experience, and ability to navigate through complex matters.
