Marcus is a director in our Energy and Infrastructure team and leads Plesner's Environmental Law team. He places great emphasis on good collaboration and focuses on providing advice that is valuable and useful in the client's commercial and/or political reality.

PRACTICE AREAS

Energy and Infrastructure
Environmental Law and Planning Law
Environmental, Social & Governance (ESG)
Mining & Metals
Public Law

Marcus advises on environmental and planning law, as well as a wide range of public law issues, including energy regulatory matters. He represents public authorities and Danish and international businesses in complex matters, including legal proceedings, complaint processes, and compulsory acquisition matters.

Marcus has a Master's degree in Law from Aalborg University. Before re-joining Plesner in 2021, he worked as a legal consultant in Municipality of Herlev. This role provided him with thorough knowledge of the legal landscape for municipalities, and insight into the procedures and considerations involved in enforcing environmental and planning legislation.

Great teamwork with colleagues and clients is central to Marcus's approach. By applying his expertise and often working closely together his colleagues in our Energy & Infrastructure team, as well as with colleagues in Plesner's Real Estate, M&A and Dispute Resolution teams, Marcus aims to deliver comprehensive and pragmatic legal services and achieve the best possible outcomes for our clients.
