PRACTICE AREAS

Construction

Camilla advises both national and international clients on complex matters within construction law.

Camilla assists clients throughout all phases of construction project - from initial planning, through execution, to dispute resolution - including litigation and arbitration. She has advised on several high-profile hospital projects in Denmark.

In addition to traditional construction law, Camilla has significant experience with project development, including all legal aspects of developing new urban districts.

Camilla also has a strong focus on ESG and sustainable construction, and she is involved in professional networks promoting innovation and knowledge-sharing within these fields.

Camilla has a Master's degree in Law from the University of Copenhagen and has studied at the University of British Columbia in Canada.

Camilla's career has included previous positions at SIRIUS advokater, Bruun & Hjejle, and the Danish Appeals Permission Board, and she consequently has a broad and solid foundation in both public and private law.
