Mette is Chief Communications & Marketing Officer at Plesner, where she leads the firm's brand, marketing and communications efforts. Mette is responsible for strengthening Plesner's market position, shaping its voice, and ensuring clear, consistent communication across stakeholders, channels and markets.

With more than 20 years of experience, Mette brings a strong track record of building brands and positioning organisations through strategic communications. Mette has led global and Nordic communications functions at Deloitte, working closely with executive leadership on thought leadership, reputation management and complex, high-impact communications, including navigating geopolitical agendas and societal expectations. Mette has also driven large-scale brand initiatives, developed executive profiles and led high-performing teams across markets.

At Plesner, Mette works closely with colleagues across the firm to ensure that the combined expertise of teams is reflected in how Plesner is positioned and engages with clients and the market.
